Nitin Deckha

Brash, young, and restless . . .

Poignant and humorous, these stories describe the anxieties of ambitious young South Asians as they hustle for status, love, careers, and personal fulfillment in a new world.

In "Piece of Cake," Raj, transplanted from Houston to New York, and dating a European photographer, is forced to confront Neha, his ex-girlfriend. In "Spick and Span," Shilpa doubts the path she has taken when asked to matchmake at a marriage convention in New Jersey. "Potatoes and Punjabis are Everywhere" follows Happy, a college student, during his first days in Toronto, as he considers whether to cut or keep his unshorn hair. In "Woh Auntie Hai Yahan (The Auntie Has Arrived)," Kusum, a recently widowed real estate agent in the Toronto suburbs, struggles to repair her life, finding inspiration from Bollywood.

"Deckha's stories are local yet universal, brimming with insight and humour. Each story is laden with leitmotif and rich imagery. This collection is culturally relevant, intelligent and fascinating. An enjoyable read."
